Officer Emmons Arrests Railway Surveyor after Latter Strikes him Three Times. Alleged to have Hunted Trouble.

E. V. St. Martin, a member of the Western Maryland Engineering Corps, which is working in this section, celebrated July Fourth by getting too intimate with John Barleycorn, following which he picked a fight with Otis Criswell, was beaten at his own game, and then fell into the hands of Officer Emmons who placed him in Sheriff Thompson's care on a charge of assault and battery on an officer. William Haney, a friend of St. Martin, participated in incidents accompanying the arrest and he also was placed in jail on the same charge. Both were released later on $500 bail each for a hearing before Squire Hill Saturday afternoon.

St. Martin is said to have been hunting some one with whom to fight and was standing at the Eagle Hotel when Criswell came along. A bystander recommended Criswell as one who could probably give the surveyor what he was looking for and St. Martin followed him to Centre Square, where Criswell was accosted with "I hear you're the town bully."

"Oh, no," answered the Gettysburgian, "I sometimes hunt a fight when I've been drinking. When I'm sober I am a law abiding citizen but I can usually take care of myself."

Biff, came a blow from the engineer, and in a moment Criswell had returned the blow with interest, knocking the big opponent to the street. Officer Emmons rushed to the scene but Criswell had punished his man thoroughly before the policemen could get there. When Emmons interfered St. Martin demanded who he was and the officer exhibited his badge.

"Hub. I'd just as soon hit you as anyone else," said St. Martin, and with that Emmons received a stinging blow on the cheek. He brought his face into play but St. Martin struck him twice in the face before Mr. Emmons and several citizens, who hurried to his side, could subdue the surveyor.

The prisoner was taken with difficulty to the jail, Haney, it is alleged, accompanying the crowd and interfering. When the jail was reached Mr. Emmons gave St. Martin into the hands of several men and took Haney in charge marching both into jail, where they spent a short time before securing bail.

SLIGHT WRECK

Passengers on an eight coach excursion train from Pen Mar to York were given a shake up and a scare Thursday night when the engine drawing it was derailed while going into a switch at Orrtanna.

The train was moving slowly at the time and an ugly accident was thereby averted. Upon entering the switch, which it appears was defective, the front wheel of the engine left the track and ran to the side. The sudden stop caused a butting of the coaches and the shock created not only a panic in the forward cars but threw some of the occupants off the seats.

There were 463 passengers on board. None was hurt and after a delay of several hours and assistance from an engine out of Gettysburg, the train reached here.

PREPARING FOR THE ENCAMPMENT

Building Bridges, Laying Pipes and Doing Other Work in Preparation for National Guard Camp. College Boys Working.

Busy days have been spent at the site of the National Guard encampment this week and, as a result, much progress has been made toward getting the site in shape for the big camp here this month.

Colonel Rausch and his detail have been very active and several gangs of men are at work in different portions preparing roads and doing the various necessary preliminary work. Long Lane, the approach to the Division Quartermaster's headquarters, has been improved by the construction of a number of small bridges. Water pipes have been laid in this section of the field during the past week and old office building has again been erected.

Work at digging the artesian well west of town has been going along steadily, though slowly on account of the great amount of rock encountered.

About the most interesting gang of workmen on the field is a bunch of college boys working with pick and shovel, making road and doing any other jobs, with these implements, for they may be called. Most of them are Gettysburg boys have spent many months working over text books and in the class rooms so that this heavy outdoor toil is something for which they are not specially trained. But they are standing it in fine shape and work like good fellows under the hot sun picking and shoveling heavy dirt and rocks. They have become very strong advocates of the full dinner pail.

The Warner and Johns properties at the edge of town along Washington street and Long Lane, have been selected for all parades and reviews and the location will prove a great convenience to Gettysburg people and visitors who enjoy seeing the spectacular part of camp life. A site west of Reynolds' avenue was originally considered but was found to be unavailable.

Battery B, which had been located near Belmont school house, several miles west of town on the Chambersburg pike, will now camp with the cavalry and signal corps near the Catholic cemetery. Fear of difficulty in getting suitable toll arrangement was in part responsible for this change.

SERIOUS AUTO ACCIDENT

A serious collision occurred Tuesday night about 11.30 o'clock on the Hanover and Littlestown turnpike, near the residence of Charles Wehler, in Union township.

An automobile, in which were two ladies and two young men, on their way from Littlestown to Hanover, collided with a horse and spring wagon, on which were seated Charles Sell, wife and several small children. The horse was struck by the automobile, torn from the shafts and thrown some distance. The animal was injured to such an extent that it was found necessary to kill it to end its suffering. The wagon was broken into pieces.

Strange to say, neither Mr. Sell, his wife or children were seriously injured—Mrs. Sell receiving a few bruises about her body.

It is not known what injury, if any, was done to the autoists, as their identity was not discovered. It is believed, however, they reside in Hanover. The machine was put out of commission.

It is alleged that the machine was going at a high rate of speed and that the driver turned to the left side in passing the team.

LARGE GRASS STALK

The farmers about York Springs are trying hard to outdo each other in the raising of tall grass. John W. King has an exceptionally fine field and challenged all comers to produce longer grass. They succeeded in finding longer individual stalks though Mr. King's field is reported as the prize one in the county. S. B. King, of Latimore township, reports one stalk of timothy measuring 65 inches; Henry A. Meals, of York Springs, one 65 1/4; David Wagner, Latimore township, 72 1/4; George W. Day, Huntington township 74. Peter Spangler reports a 55 inch clover stalk and a 72 inch timothy blade.

ANOTHER CYCLORAMA

Those who have followed the proposed movement to bring to Gettysburg the Philippeaux painting of the battle will be interested to know that in Dayton, Ohio, there is housed a similar painting which the owner offers for sale. It was seen by 25,000 visitors last year. The owner suggests its erection as a memorial to General Meade, in view of the Loyal Legion of Pennsylvania asking for a $100,000 appropriation for the erection of a monument to his memory.

BASE BALL CAUSES MUCH ENTHUSIASM

Catholics Defeat Methodists in Presence of Large and Enthusiastic Crowd. Three Teams Tied for First Place.

Enthusiasm was the chief figure in the base ball game on Nixon Field Wednesday evening when a large crowd of noisy rooters saw the Catholics defeat the Methodists by a score of 8 to 4.

When the Catholics piled up seven runs in the first inning the followers of the team were fairly wild with delight and kept up continuous cheering. Reinecker pitched for the Methodists, and six hits, coupled with errors and passed balls soon tallied up the big lead. Epp replaced Reinecker in the next inning and the opposing batmen could do little with him for the remainder of the game, getting few hits and only one run resulted.

In the third inning Swope got all the way around to third on errors and a stolen base and scored on an overthrow. The Methodists had men on third in the first and fourth but could not score.

Finally their inning came. It was the fifth and Reinecker and Ott, the first men up, both got hits while Essick got to first when he was struck by a pitched ball. No one out and joy was supreme in the Methodist camp. The next two struck out however, and gloom reigned until Rosensteel muffed Zineand's fly to left field and two runs tallied. A moment later Homan's three bagger scored Zineand and Essick. Homan was caught between third and home and the game was over.

PRETTY DISPLAY

John A. Cox was responsible for a pretty display of fireworks on North Washington street Thursday evening at nine o'clock. Red lights had been placed from the Eagle Hotel to a point two and a half squares farther north and were lighted shortly before the 9.05 train came in. Sky rockets were "put off" and the whole made a very pretty exhibition. A number of torpedoes on the track were exploded as the train passed over them.

FORTY KILLED IN R. R. WRECK

Express Telescopes Crowded Train Ahead.

SCORES ARE INJURED

Lackawanna Limited, Traveling at High Speed, Crashes Into Crowded Train Near Corning, N. Y.

Corning, N. Y., July 5.—Forty persons are dead, three so badly hurt that their deaths are expected, and more than fifty are suffering injuries, the result of a tail-end collision between the crack Buffalo limited of the Lackawanna railroad and a train of express cars in the thick fog above Gibson Narrows, two miles from this town, on Independence Day.

Trainmen say that this loss of life was caused by the carelessness of the engineer of the express train, who ran at a terrific rate of speed past a frantically signalling flagman and the warning of a dropped semaphore arm, into the passenger train standing still upon the track with its hundred or so of sleeping passengers.

The engineer, who is blamed by the authorities for the accident, jumped before the crash came. He sat on a rail, high up on a hill near the scene of the accident, watching in a dazed way the wrecking crews at work.

The dead, which filled to overflowing the morgues of the little town, are in many instances so frightfully mangled that identification is almost impossible. The engine of the express train ripped its way through the two day coaches in the rear, killing instantly every one in them, plowed on through half of a steel Pullman, throwing the sleeping car off the track, and then came to a standstill with the green carpet of the Pullman hung about its pilot.

The passenger train was heavily loaded and was drawn by two locomotives. It was running about half an hour late. The train had been standing on the track for twenty minutes when the express train, which carried no passengers, struck it in the rear at full speed. The two day coaches attached to the rear of No. 9 were hurled down an embankment and the express plunged half way through the rear Pullman of the standing train before it came to a stop.

Most of the killed were passengers in the day coaches, who were going home to pass the Fourth. F. W. Drake, of Passaic, N. J., Pullman conductor, said that four passengers were killed in the Pullman.

One of the unidentified bodies was that of a young woman married Wednesday. She had upon her finger a ring bearing within the inscription "F. C. M. and A. B. July 3, 1912." On the body of another woman, unidentified, was found nothing but a pendant set with an amethyst and three pearls. The body of a little girl five or six years old was among the unidentified.

The passenger train had been brought to a standstill by a freight train which had become stalled. One of the two locomotives of the passenger train was uncoupled to put it on the siding. Conductor Staples, of the passenger train, says he caused the blocks to be set against any westbound train.

WINS KAISER'S PRIZE

Junker Maennerchor, of Philadelphia, Awarded Musical Trophy.

Philadelphia, July 5.—As the culminating feature of a week unparalleled in the musical annals of America, highest honors in the field of song were heaped on Philadelphia when the Junker Maennerchor of this city was awarded the Kaiser prize, the most eagerly sought music trophy in America.

The coveted object, a beautiful and valuable statue of a minnesinger, donated by Emperor William in 1900 to the Northeastern Saengerbund of North America, will now be retained permanently in this city.

The announcement of Philadelphia's artistic victory brought to an end a memorable fashion day which in itself would have been a notable finish to the extraordinary events that have marked the twenty-third national Saengerfest. It was a day of German hospitality and good cheer such as Philadelphia has never before known, and the memory of it will live for years.

Ten-Year-Old Boy Wounded in Battle. Rome, July 5.—Among the prisoners taken by the Italians at the battle of Sidi-Sidi was an Arab boy, who was seen firing in the front line of the Arabs until a bullet hit him in the chest. An Italian soldier carried him into camp, where his wound was dressed. The boy, who was only ten years old, said he went into the battle with his mother and father, and that they had been killed the previous day.

BEVERLY GREET PRESIDENT TAFT

Summer "White House" is Formally Opened.

Beverly, Mass., July 5.—President and Mrs. Taft arrived here yesterday to open their summer residence at Farmington.

Mr. Taft will spend the week end in playing golf and automobiling and will return to Washington next Monday for a political conference with the members of the sub-committee of the Republican national committee, who have been delegated to confer with him in regard to tentative plans for the coming campaign.

Mr. Taft will devote the next few days entirely to rest and recreation to prepare himself for the nervous strain of the contest. Mrs. Taft will remain at Beverly until late in the autumn. Robert and Helen Taft are expected to reach Beverly in a day or two from Cincinnati, where they have been for the last few weeks. Charley Taft accompanied his parents to Beverly, where he will spend most of the summer.

The arrival of the president was the principal incident in Beverly's safe and sane Fourth of July celebration. A large crowd gathered to greet the President and Mrs. Taft as the special train drew into the station.

NEW USE FOR FIRECRACKER

Fails to Stop Hiccoughing When Exploded at Sufferer's Bedside.

Logansport, Ind., July 5.—Physicians exploded a giant firecracker at the bedside of James McGowan at a hospital in the hope that the nervous shock would stop his hiccoughing, from which he had been suffering for five days, but though he was quieted he died of exhaustion.

McGowan, who was forty-eight years old, had been hiccoughing continuously, and electricity and other remedial agents were tried without effect, before the opening of the Fourth of July celebration suggested the firecracker as a last aid.

Boy Killed by Bat as He Slides Home.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 5.—"He's out!" said the catcher. "He's dead!" said the umpire, just as Joseph Liverick, fifteen years old, of 39 Clarence street, this city, rolled into the home plate while attempting to make a "squeeze play" in a ball game on Duquesne Heights. He was struck on the head with a bat which slipped from the hands of the batsman and died instantly. The catcher tagged the dead player with the ball, not knowing that the boy had been struck with the bat.

AERONAUT IS DASHED TO DEATH

20,000 People See Man Fall 1200 Feet.

BODY IS BADLY CRUSHED

Parachute Jumper Lost His Balance On Bar and Pitched Headlong to His Death.

Belleville, N. J., July 5.—In full view of 20,000 persons gathered in Hillside park, near here, Tom Moore, who has done parachute drops at the park for the past five seasons, fell from the bar of his parachute and was dashed to death 1200 feet below.

He had been sitting on the bar of the parachute and in some way lost his balance. Before the ascent he had refused to put on the lifebelt.

Moore's home was in Jacksonville, Fla. For five summers he has done drops at the park. He was twenty-five years old and was unmarried. The holiday crowd at the park broke all records, and when in the middle of the afternoon Moore and his partner, William C. Gillen, of Harrison, stepped into the balloon which was to take them up, the feature of the day began.

William Thaller, manager of the park, saw that Moore had no lifebelt on and he remonstrated with him. Moore laughed and said it wasn't necessary. The balloon was cut loose and it rose rapidly. It went up about 2000 feet and then Gillen cut loose. After he had shot rapidly towards the ground for several hundred feet his speed was checked and he began to sail slowly downwards.

Moore stayed in the balloon until he reached a height of about 3500 feet. He was scheduled to make a triple drop. There were three parachutes on his bar, and he was to open one, sail on that some distance, cut it loose, sail with another, cut it loose, and reach the ground on the last sail.

The string of parachutes was cut loose, with Moore sitting on the bar. The second parachute had opened up and he was sailing downwards nicely, when suddenly he pitched backwards from the bar and fell headlong.

The spectators in the park watched silently for the moment that it took him to reach the ground and then went into a panic. The body struck the ground about half a mile from the park and within 200 feet of where Gillen had just landed safely. Hundreds of spectators rushed to the spot of the landing. Every bone in Moore's body was broken.

The body will be sent to Moore's home in Florida.

4TH OF JULY CASUALTIES

Two Killed, One Blinded and Many Injured in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, July 5.—A toll of two deaths and many injured was exacted by Philadelphia's celebration of the Fourth, notwithstanding the efforts to make the day safe and sane.

Many of the hospitals were taxed to their utmost by the well meant but misguided efforts of too ardent celebrators. Most of the injured were children.

Uncle John Book, as he was called by everyone who knew him, white and colored alike, was sitting under a tree opposite his home, with a volume of "Pilgrim's Progress" opened before him, when a bullet pierced his heart and killed him instantly. It was fired by Edward Pole, colored, aged seventeen years.

Pole was standing in front of the house with several other boys. He boasted that he had a revolver in his hip pocket. The other boys wanted to know why he didn't shoot it off. He drew the revolver and, turning his head one way and the gun the other, began firing. At first the gun was pointed toward the ground, but on each succeeding shot it was leveled higher, and on the third shot the bullet struck the aged colored man in the breast, killing him instantly. Pole was arrested.

While watching the firing of a rifle which his boy friend was using, John Tardi was shot and killed. The bullet penetrated his heart. Nicholas Brims, aged seventeen, was arrested.

One child lost the sight of both eyes and others were more or less seriously injured in handling fireworks. Joseph Witkin, six years old, of 1032 South Fourth street, is the child whose sight was destroyed. He was given a giant firecracker by an older boy, and while holding it near his face it exploded. The lad's eyes were literally torn from the sockets. He was taken to the Mount Sinai hospital.

Freed to Harvest His Wheat.

Carlisle, Pa., July 5.—His wife having died a few weeks ago, and having no one to care for his home near Shippensburg and his wheat and hay ready for harvesting, Clinton Marth has been discharged from jail by Judge Sadler, who believes all concerned will be better off with Martin in the harvest field than in the county prison. He was in prison in default of fine.

Myra's Confidences

"Your new hat is just grand, teacher, and I hope you wear it in good health!" exclaimed Myra Schpock. Myra was exalted monitor of the flower boxes and was attending to them after school.

"Thank you, dear," answered Miss Lord as she marked her fourth grade arithmetic papers.

"It's nothing to thank about," said Myra. "Say, you ought to see my ma's new hat. It's red, with purple flowers. It's got a big green bow across the back. When pa saw it he said, 'Mrs. Sarah Schpock, that there hat is one stunner!' I like yours better than ma's, but I wouldn't say so to ma. It'd make her sore."

"Of course, you wouldn't want to hurt your mother's feelings," agreed the teacher.

"My ma saw you coming to school yesterday with a swell," confided Myra. "Ma said, 'I ain't sure if it's Wednesday or Thursday morning he scorts your teacher to school, but I'm going to make it my business to find out.' So she watched to see."

"Child, what difference can it possibly make to your mother?" asked Miss Lord in surprise.

"Ma doesn't want to miss anything like that. She says it just does her heart good to see you and the swell go by so nice like together. Ma hasn't had much pleasure since the twins came, so she enjoys it when you two go by. She says, 'That man can't take his eyes off your teacher.'"

"You must not talk like that, Myra," reprimanded Miss Lord. "It isn't good taste to say such things about people."

"I don't, honest and true, Miss Lord. I said to my ma, I said: 'Ma, you don't know nothing about it. He ain't really my teacher's man. It's the flit and flutter teacher what likes Miss Lord.'"

"And who may he be?" inquired the teacher with a gasp of astonishment.

"He's our exercise instructor, Mr. Fillerson. We kids call him 'flit and flutter,' because he always kept telling us to flit and flutter when we drilled for our butterfly entertainment. I said to my ma, I said, 'Praps I don't know my long division, but I do know when a man is just crazy about a lady.' Ma laughed so hard she broke her new corset steel."

"Myra, you are impossible," declared Miss Lord. "If you paid as close attention to your long division as you do to other people's affairs you would probably learn your numbers. You are certainly a case for the psychology department."

"We have nicknames for all the teachers," declared the loquacious Myra, not at all abashed. "The singing superintendent is 'Do-Mi-Sol.' We call the sewing lady 'Thimble,' because she gets such a mad when we forget our thimbles. The drawing lady is 'Tiptoe.' She walks as if she was afraid of waking the baby."

"What a disrespectful class of children I have!" exclaimed the amused teacher, trying to wear a disapproving look and failing. As a token of her capitulation she added, smiling: "I wonder if I have a nickname?"

"Dast I tell you yours?" asked Myra.

"I'm eager to hear it."

"Yours is 'Lady Violet,' because you always smell so nice of violets. I hope I will when I'm a big lady."

"Thank you. That's a very nice nickname."

"Teacher," said Myra after a moment's silence, "Iszella Zwick ain't coming to school tomorrow. She's got to go to the doctor's for her nose."

"Is her nose at the doctor's?" laughed Miss Lord.

"No, ma'am, but she has badnoids. That's the reason she's so sad. When they're taken out she won't make no more whispers in school."

"Poor child, I'm sorry for her. Give her my love."

"Oh! Oh! Miss Lord! Look quick! There's an automobile. It's your swell; he's coming right into school. My! Your cheeks look pretty and red!"

"Myra, I'm afraid your mother will be worrying about you. Now, you'd better run home, dear. Thank you for helping me so nicely."

"Good-by, teacher. My ma won't have no mad on me when I tell her what I seen."

The Stamp Upside Down.

He was a gallant post office clerk, and business for the moment was slack. Presently, to his joy, there entered a beautiful young lady.

"What can I do for you?" he asked, with unusual affability.

"I want a two-cent stamp," said his customer, "and would you mind weighing this letter for me, as I'm afraid it may be a little too heavy."

Mind? The very reverse. He was delighted, and chatted glibly about the weather while he executed her order. He even volunteered to lick and affix the stamp for her—a courtesy which she accepted with a dainty blush.

Just as he was laying the stamp carefully on the precious envelope, however, she stopped him.

"Put it upside down," she requested. "Why?" he asked.

"Oh," she replied, "that means something to Charlie!"

And the clerk's interest vanished as the clouds of monotony once more gathered on his horizon.

A Broken Vow.

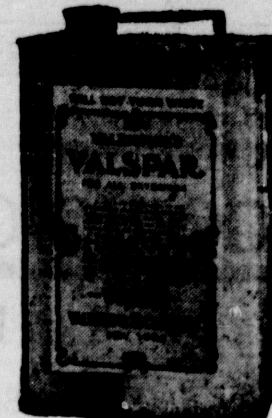

He swore that he would still be glad, no matter what misfortunes came. Alas, an umpire made him mad. The next day at a baseball game.

Not Quite Clear.

"I can understand spreadeagle tactics, but here's something I can't understand."

"What's that?" "Why should a congressman arguing for an appropriation to dredge a creek speak bitterly about the crown heads of Europe?"

JACK JOHNSON STILL CHAMPION

Police Stop the Fight in the Ninth Round.

Las Vegas, N. M., July 5. — Jack Johnson is still the champion of the world, not because he proved himself the better man in his fight with Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman.

Johnson is still the champion, for the reason that Flynn lost his head when he had the big fellow on the run and made it necessary for the police to jump into the ring in the ninth round.

Referee Ed Smith then gave the fight to Johnson, not because of the fouling tactics of Flynn, but because he figured that the black had out-pointed the challenger in the rounds that had gone before.

Flynn, bearing in at every opportunity, was hammering at the stomach of the champion. And his blows were telling, too. And beginning with the seventh round the black began to hold. The smile disappeared from his visage. The champion held through-out the eighth. But Flynn, whose strong point has never been calmness, seeing a possible victory, began to fight with his head as well as with the strength of his powerful arms and shoulders. He began to butt. Referee Smith cautioned him time after time.

This was the situation when the ninth round dawned. Flynn bored in and then he lost his head, and instead of fighting he renewed his butting. Suddenly there was a commotion. The police were entering the ring. And once within the ropes the fight was stopped.

Pandemonium reigned. No one knew what had happened. The police said the fight could not continue. It was up to the referee to make some decision. He lifted the arm of the black man. The thousands knew that Johnson was still champion of the world.

Wolfgang Wins on Foul.
Los Angeles, Cal., July 5.—Ad Wolfgang, lightweight champion, was given the decision over Joe Rivers in their fight at Vernon in the thirteenth round of their fight. Rivers had the best of the fighting much of the way and the outcome of the fight was unpopular with the record crowd people. Referee Jack Welch gave the decision to Wolfgang on a foul. All bets were declared off by the referee.

ROW IN TREASURY FACES MACVEAGH

Assistant Resigns and Congress Asked to Investigate.

GRAVE CHARGES ARE MADE

A. Platt Andrew Declares Business Is Hampered by Mental Vagaries of the Secretary.

Washington, July 5.—A row in the United States treasury of more than a year's standing between Secretary MacVeagh and Assistant Secretary A. Platt Andrew, culminated in Andrew's resignation and a proposal for a congressional investigation of Secretary MacVeagh's administration.

Representative Cox, of Ohio, presented in the house a resolution for such an investigation, after he had read Mr. Andrew's letter of resignation to President Taft.

Andrew's letter to the president created a profound sensation. He declared that energetic young men in the treasury department had been "hampered and discouraged at every turn by Secretary MacVeagh's idiosyncrasies, his astounding capacity for procrastination, his incapacity for decision and the peculiar moods of suspicion and aversion to which he is constantly subject."

Andrew also informed President Taft that Lawrence O. Murray, comptroller of the currency; Lee McClung, treasurer of the United States, and other high officials of the treasury were practically unable to transact the business of their offices because of Secretary MacVeagh's moods, which Andrews says "would seem inexplicable in a man of normal mind."

In a long letter to the president Andrew stated that his predecessors, Charles D. Norton, later secretary to President Taft, and Charles D. Hilges, who also left the treasury to go to the white house, were compelled to submit to the same conditions under Secretary MacVeagh as were imposed upon him, and says Mr. MacVeagh for weeks at a time would have no relations whatever with his assistants, while government business was delayed. Andrew wrote the president that conduct of the public business under such conditions was impossible and that the treasury business was practically at a standstill.

While relations between Andrew and his chief have been strained more than a year, it is said they reached the breaking point two weeks ago, when Andrew went to the Chicago convention. When he returned it became known that either Mr. MacVeagh would leave the cabinet or Mr. Andrew would leave the treasury.

Senators Crane, Lodge and Smoot talked with the president about the situation and an effort was made to have Andrew retained. His resignation was practically asked for, however, and he tendered it and left Washington a few hours later.

When Andrew advised the secretary in writing that he intended going to the Republican convention to assist in framing the financial plank of the platform, Mr. MacVeagh, it is said, replied that he desired his assistant to remain at his desk in Washington. Andrew, his friends declare, unsuccessfully sought a personal interview with his chief to straighten out the matter. He went to Chicago. According to officials, it was this incident which constituted his failure to obey orders given him by the secretary, referred to in a White House statement.

REBEL DEAD DOT MEXICAN BATTLEFIELD

Federals Slaughter Revolution- ists in Terrific Fight.

Bachimba, Station, Mex., July 5.—The semi-circular battle line of government troops renewed the attack on the rebels for possession of Bachimba Canyon, the entrance to which, for a distance of a mile, together with several high positions, were gained by the federals in the opening of hostilities twenty-four hours before.

Twenty-six cannon and sixteen machine guns, distributed on the east and west sides of the mountain pass, opened fire on the rebels simultaneously. The rebel artillery in comparison seemed defective and erratic.

The losses in the first day's fighting apparently were great, as the battlefield is strewn with the dead and wounded on both sides. The rebels clung tenaciously to their positions, but the combined assaults of infantry and cavalry, supported by the deadly fire of the artillery, forced them to yield strategic hills and ranges over looking the canyon.

The federal troops carried out orders with mathematical precision.

Pedro the Cruel, the King Too Brutal for a Brutal Age

A SEVEN-TEEN-year-old boy, in 1850, cast aside his advisers and guardians (who had been placed in charge of him and of his realm during his minority) and declared himself king. PEDRO THE CRUEL, king of the Spanish states of Castile and Leon. He is known to history as "Pedro the Cruel."

Many acts that would nowadays be regarded as barbarous cruelty were then looked upon as mere deeds of justice and necessity. It was an unbelievably brutal and cruel age. For a man in that century to win the title of "The Cruel" implied a monstrous character.

Pedro, as a mere boy, fell under the influence of one of the most beautiful, clever and unscrupulous women of all history. She was Maria de Padilla. It was she who prompted him to cast aside his counselors and to declare himself king. Her next step was to induce him to give her relatives the highest court offices. The crafty old prime minister, Albuquerque, had strengthened Maria's influence over Pedro in the hope of advancing his own interests. But Maria made Pedro dismiss Albuquerque from service. Courtiers who failed to pay her all sorts of extravagant compliments were put to death by the king's orders. A money lender who refused to advance money for her expenditures is said to have been boiled in oil.

When Pedro was twenty it was arranged that he should marry a gentle and lovely French princess, Blanche of Bourbon. Maria, fearing to lose her own power over the young king, hit on a truly devilish trick for making him hate his sweet young wife. Blanche gave Pedro a splendid jeweled girdle as a bridal gift. Maria, by a sleight-of-hand feat, stole the girdle and put in its place a poisonous snake. She then worked on Pedro's superstitions by telling him Blanche was a sorceress, and had sought to kill him by means of the "bewitched" girdle. In terror, Pedro sent his innocent wife to prison. (They had been married just three days.)

For this and for other acts of cruelty and misrule the people murmured. They took Blanche's part. So did Pedro's half-brother, Don Fadrique. Pedro assured them that he loved Blanche and would set her free. Instead, he put her to death. He invited Fadrique to the palace and went forth to greet him as the latter entered the palace courtyard. Then, at a signal from Pedro, Fadrique was stabbed to death by an assassin.

A second half-brother was disposed of by Pedro in like manner. So were many noblemen. At last, under a third half-brother, Henry of Trastamara, the nobles rebelled against Pedro. The pope excommunicated him for his series of black crimes. He was driven out of Spain by Henry and by the latter's allies, the "White Companies" (soldiers of fortune). Taking refuge in France, Pedro fell in with the "Black Prince," heir apparent of England, who was ravaging the French lands. By making certain glittering promises of reward Pedro induced the Black Prince to help him regain his throne. At the head of an English army they marched into Spain. There, in the fierce battle (Navarete, 1367), they beat Henry. Pedro was once more king.

He failed to keep any of the promises he had made, and the Black Prince left Spain in disgust. As soon as the dreaded English troops were gone the war broke out anew. Henry gained many victories. He could not wholly conquer the king. At last, in 1369, he induced Pedro to come to his tent for a peace conference.

Scarcely had the two half-brothers met in the tent than they flew at each other's throats like angry dogs. Henry stabbed Pedro with a dagger. But the blade broke off against the coat of mail the king wore under his cloak. Pedro then, by main force, caught Henry in his arms and hurled him to the ground. But one of Henry's followers tripped Pedro and sent him sprawling. Before the fallen king could scramble to his feet, Henry drove a sword through his throat.

Thus perished Pedro the Cruel in his thirty-sixth year. Henry seized the throne, put the slain monarch's two sons in a cage and starved them to death. Scoundrel though Pedro was, he had been loved by the common people. Many of them prospered under his reign, and a whimsical sense of fairness on his part had led them to nickname him "Pedro the Just."

THE LOVE STORY OF A GRAY JACKET

By RANDALL PARRISH

CHAPTER XIV.

I Became a Colonel of Artillery.

My own situation at this moment was too critical, too full of peril and uncertainty, to afford opportunity for moralizing over Bungar's chances of escape. Only one possibility lay before me—there remained no choice, no necessity for planning. It was pure luck which placed upon most doors of life, and it was upon luck alone I must rely now. I have often wondered since how I ever succeeded in squeezing my body through that narrow opening into the empty fireplace without at least knocking over something during the difficult passage. But I did manage, working my way down slowly, creeping inch by inch like a snake, carefully testing each object I touched in the darkness for fear of its proving loose, until I finally lay stretched at full length upon what was evidently, from its feeling, a carpet, of unusually fine texture.

The room proved to be an inner one and unlighted, a bedchamber, as I soon determined, for my outstretched hands encountered the posts of a bed. Then a slight gust of air partially swept aside a hanging curtain, which rustled like silk, and I caught a brief glimpse of the adjacent parlor. It was likewise unlighted, but the door leading into the front hall stood ajar, and through that opening there poured a stream of radiance, together with the incessant hum of many voices in animated conversation, the deep blare of the band, with the ceaseless movement of dancing feet.

Satisfying myself by sense of touch that the bed was unoccupied, for I was far too experienced a soldier to leave an enemy in my rear, I crept cautiously forward to the intercepting curtain, and drawing it aside took careful survey of the outer apartment. It was a large and handsomely furnished room, a polished mahogany writing-table littered with papers occupying a prominent position against the farther wall. A swivel chair stood beside it, and across its back hung what appeared to be a suit of clothing. I saw no other signs of human occupancy.

Evidently the new dress uniform had been carefully brushed and laid out to be worn at the ball that evening; the sudden receipt of this order had caused the owner to depart hastily in his service dress, vigorously expressing his feelings, no doubt, while his servant, now enjoying liberty below stairs, had neglected to pack up his master's things.

This knowledge was the straw which decided me; I would chance it. Hastily I drew on the rich blue and red over my old gray, adding the dress sword I had discovered in a closet, and then, wondering curiously what sort of figure I might cut in all these fine habiliments, sought a glance at myself within a mirror hanging upon the bedroom wall. Faith! but it was God's mercy that I did!

Such a face as grinned at me from that glass, peering over the high-cut, decorated collar, would surely have created a genuine sensation in those rooms below. Serious as my situation was, I laughed at the thought of it until tears ran down my cheeks, leaving white streaks the full length of them; for no chimney-sweep in the full tide of his glorious career was ever worse sooted and begrimed. I thought of the elegantly dressed lieutenant and the blonde young lady upon the stairs—surely they would have supposed the very devil himself was coming down.

It took me nearly a quarter of an hour to get myself tolerably clean, and I could not have done that had I not used some grease that was upon the stand. At the end, however, I stepped back from the glass confident that with good luck I should run the gantlet safely.

Just as I prepared to step forth a new thought occurred to me—who was I? If questioned, as was highly probable, how could I account for my presence? Who should I pretend to be? I turned over the mass of papers lying before me on the table. They were mostly accounts and detailed orders about which I cared nothing, but finally my search was rewarded by the discovery of a recent army list. I ran my eyes hastily down the artillery assignments—Barry, Sommers, Fitzmorris, Sloan, Reilly. Ah, there at last was exactly what I wanted—"Patrick L. Curran, Colonel Sixth Ohio Light Artillery, McRobert's Division, Thomas's Corps, assigned special service, staff Major-General Halleck, Washington, D. C."

"Curran, Sixth Ohio"—good; and the other? I glanced again at the open order. "Culbertson, Fourteenth Pennsylvania." I would remember those names, and with a jaunty confidence in my success, born of thorough preparation, I stepped to the open door and strode forth into the brilliantly lighted hall. Barring the single accident of encountering a possible acquaintance in the throng below, I felt fully capable of deceiving his Satanic Majesty himself.

THE NOBLENESS OF GEORGE.

"Come, dear, you must cheer up. Your husband has been dead for nearly a year now. It is time you were beginning to take an interest in things again."

"Oh, I never can do that. Poor George was so brave, so good."

"Yes, I know. But don't you think you owe it to the living to try to look on the bright side of life again?"

"I suppose it is my duty to do so. Still, I feel so deeply indebted to my poor husband that I can't think of being gay and light-hearted. You don't know the depth of his goodness."

"Oh, yes, I think I do. Everybody who knew him knew that he was honorable and high-minded and a thorough gentleman."

"But he was more than that. He was two months younger than I, and he never told anybody."

A Household Hint.

Young Wife (sobbing)—George treated me awful mean. He—He promised to give me a machine for my birthday, and it—it—came home today.

Her Mother—Then what are you crying about?

Young Wife—It's a—it's a washing machine.

WOULD HAVE NO CHANCE.

"I have just been reading an interesting article—"The Last Words of Great Men."

"Were they married men?"

"What's that got to do with it?"

"Oh, then they'd never have had a chance to get in the last word!"

Her Kitchen Alarm.

A New York man was startled last Sunday to hear an alarm clock in action, for the hour was precisely 1 p. m. "I thought the alarm clock was up stairs," he said to his wife.

CHILD HAD ECZEMA

Mother Says Saxo Salve Made Her Well.

"My little girl suffered with eczema on her hands for nearly a year and reading about Saxo Salve one day I bought a tube and found it helped her. After using two tubes my baby's hands are entirely well." Mrs. E. P. Hook, 224 E. 17th street, Connersville, Ind.

In all forms of eczema, and all other crusted or scaly humors and eruptions, Saxo Salve allays the itching at once, and penetrates the pores of the skin, reaching the very roots of the disease with its germ destroying, healing power and soon banishes the eruptions, leaving the skin smooth and unscarred.

We sell Saxo Salve on a positive guarantee for all sorts of skin affections. If it does not give satisfaction you get your money back. Try it. People's Drug Store, Gettysburg, Pa.

Everyone Needs It

The People's and Huber's Drug Stores are Having a Wonderful Sale of Thompson's Barosma, the Mighty Kidney and Liver Specific.

And no wonder, when they offer to refund your money if it doesn't cure any disease of the kidneys, liver or bladder, backache, sideache, nervousness or any weakness of the kidneys.

But Thompson's Barosma has made so many almost miraculous cures that The People's and Huber's Drug Stores are pretty certain not to have any returns.

Here are a few instances: Frank K. Sturges, Sturtevant, Crawford county, Pa., was cured of Bright's disease six years ago and only took six bottles. He has had no bad symptoms since. "I had kidney trouble and enlargement of the liver and spleen. I took Thompson's Barosma. The first bottle reduced the measurement around my stomach from 45 to 36 inches, and several bottles completely cured me."

—M. S. Langworthy, Tryonville, Pa. After suffering the terrible agony of rheumatism for ten years, being compelled to use crutches, J. N. Dunn, Troy Center, Pa., after all hope had left him, and he had no faith in any remedy, took six bottles of Thompson's Barosma, threw away his crutches and went to work for the first time in ten years.

These statements are absolutely true, and the Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa., will prove it. Then why should anyone suffer the face of such facts? How can you suffer when The People's and Huber's Drug Stores guarantee to refund the money if a cure is not effected? Thompson's Barosma 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

Draws Out Poison

Marvelous Antiseptic that Draws Glands, Wood and Needles from the Flesh.

There never was known such a powerful drawing agent as San Cura. Wherever it has been used it has created astonishment. It drew a needle out of the foot of the daughter of Mrs. James Hitchcock, of Centerville, Pa., after the doctor had used his lance and failed.

Nothing so healing or antiseptic can be purchased today. It possesses so much healing virtue that it is guaranteed by People's and Huber's Drug Stores, to quickly cure any kind of piles, eczema, tetter, salt rheum, boils, carbuncles, ulcers, all kinds of chronic sores, chilblains, and chapped hands, or money back.

It's a mighty handy remedy to have in the house in emergencies such as burns, cuts or scalds, because it kills the pain instantly. It's a medicine chest in itself—a little family physician that is ever in demand. 25c and 50c a jar at People's and Huber's Drug Store.

BEST SKIN SOAP

Is San Cura Soap, because of its great antiseptic and healing virtues. Use it regularly, and it will make the skin soft and velvety; will remove pimples and blackheads. It's the real soap for babies' tender skin, which mothers of infants should remember. 25 cents a large cake at People's or Huber's Drug Store.

Well Deserved

The Praise That Comes from Thankful Gettysburg People.

One kidney remedy never fails. Gettysburg people rely upon it. That remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills. Gettysburg testimony proves it always reliable.

Mrs. Edward A. Trostle, 128 York St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills two years ago and I now take the pleasure in confirming that statement. A member of my family complained a great deal of pains through the small of the back and always felt tired and worn out. Doan's Kidney Pills were doing so much good work in similar cases, that we decided to try them and a supply was procured at the People's Drug Store. Their use brought relief and made a marked improvement in every way. We are firm believers in the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills and recommend them to any one afflicted with kidney complaint."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.
